ADVANTAGES OF IMPLANT Over Bridge or Denture

- ✓ Esthetic/Natural...Dental implants look and feel like your own teeth. No one will ever know that you have tooth replacement. It is easy to maintain, as implants require the same home care as your teeth.
- ✓ Secure...Following initial period of stabilization, implant will fuse with surrounding bone and offer a very rigid foundation for tooth replacement.
- ✓ Lasting...The implant is the only dental restoration that does not have a replacement need.
- ✓ Predictable...Dental implants have 95-97% success rate!!!

Millions of patients world-wide can testify on the benefits of implant-supported tooth replacement. Implants are the preferred method of tooth replacement and spare patients many of the disadvantages associated with bridges or dentures. Implants look, feel and function like natural teeth. It is an invaluable service for the people who lost or are about to lose their own teeth.

Life with dentures means more than just missing teeth. Problems associated with dentures extend far beyond tooth loss, affecting comfort, ability to chew foods, even self-image and confidence. This challenge is now a matter of the past. Dentists today can and do provide patients with beautiful and functional smiles that exceed all past expectations for denture wearers.

Do You Have Missing Teeth, Loose Bridges Or Dentures? Dental Implants Are The Ideal Solution!

Dental Implants are an ideal treatment option for people in good health who lost one or more teeth because of periodontal disease, failed root canal or trauma.

Dental implants are the preferred replacement for lost teeth. They are titanium root replacements that do not develop cavities, do not need root canals and have 97% success rate. As anchors in the jawbone, dental implants form a stable foundation for permanent attachment of the crown; grinding of adjacent teeth does not take place, and since implants act as "artificial dental roots" by transmitting the chewing forces into the jaw, implants help to preserve the bone. A single implant as a root substitute, is the most elegant way of achieving a cosmetically ideal closure of the space. In jaws with no teeth at all, dental implants are a secure fixation method for removable full dentures and so spare the patient the usual disadvantages of conventional "false teeth," such as ill-fitting or loose prosthesis, slurred speech, and sunken in cheeks.

A gentle surgical procedure is used to place the implants in the jawbone. The implants remain undisturbed for a period of 6 weeks (in healthy patients with good bone quality and quantity), while the bone remodels around them forming a strong biological attachment, like the one between your natural tooth roots and jawbone.

Not all implants are the same! Unlike most types of implants, there is usually no need for a second surgical procedure with the Straumann implant system. This is more comfortable for you and much easier on the delicate gum tissue surrounding your implant-supported replacement teeth. Once the bone has remodeled around the implants and the foundation is stable, a small connector is securely attached to the implant. New replacement crowns, which will be custom made with both functional and cosmetic needs in mind, will be cemented to the connector, much like the conventional crowns.

Fabricating your new teeth involves one or more appointments to ensure proper size, shape, color, and fit. Implant supported prostheses usually do not require replacement and need minimal maintenance regimen.

Dr. Gounakis specializes in implants and has special skills and extraordinary experience that will make your implant procedure, whether simple or difficult, a very painless event with beautiful results.
